

GEORGE W. BUSH:

A Traitor To His People

Above: U.S. and Mexican Presidents George W. Bush and Vicente Fox look onward to the new America.

In just the last few years, "1.4 million Mexicans have come to the U.S., and fully 85% of them have entered illegally." (Business Week, July 4, 2005)

And a dangerously skyrocketing population is not the only problem that mass, unchecked illegal immigration poses; these immigrants do not only cause severe crowding in already overpopulated areas of America, they completely wreak havoc on our social infrastructure. According to Fresno, California's mayor Alan Autry, "the jails are overflowing with people we don't even know, and the hospitals are packed with people using the ER as their primary doctor, putting those hospitals near bankruptcy."

In the light of these worsening conditions, a recent poll of registered American voters shows that 79% favored stationing the military at the border to stop illegal immigrants (Fox News, June 2005). George Bush answers these patriotic concerns by proposing a "Guest Worker" program, which essentially grants amnesty to illegal Mexican immigrants. Based on the U.S. Border Patrol's own survey, this program actually led to a spike in illegal immigration. Fully 45% of the illegal immigrants surveyed said they crossed the border illegally because of rumors about the Bush program (reported by Judicial Watch, Jun 28, 2005).

President Bush's plan to grant guest worker status to illegal immigrants is only one of the many suicidal Bush policies betraying the American people. Every perceptive American citizen should be aware that George Bush does not loyally fulfill his duty to his people on any vital issue. So, we must then ask ourselves: whose interests does Mr. Bush serve?
